Ramblin Man

Ramblin Man Tribute to The Allman Brothers

About

Ramblin Man - A Tribute to the Allman Brothers Band takes their name from one of the most iconic songs by the South's greatest band. Based "out of Nashville, Tennessee," the band boasts some of the finest players in the "Music City" that Duane and Gregg Allman were born in. It's all there - the twin guitar harmonies, the dueling drummers, the soulful vocals and adept keyboards and bass. But more important than all of that is the spirit. These men have it. They live and breathe it. Like the river that "keeps on flowin" in Dickey Betts' classic "Blue Sky," all of Ramblin Man's members have been playing music since they were boys. And their love of the Allman Brothers Band goes deep. For lead guitarist and vocalist Nick Swan, it all began with an outdoor show at Knoxville's World's Fair Park seeing the band's 90's comeback lineup for the first time. Slide guitarist Dan Wecht grew up in New Jersey and regularly caught the band's residency at NYC's Beacon Theatre. Bassist Gary Davis cut his teeth on Berry Oakley's intricate basslines while growing up near Memphis, TN. And while many ABB tributes tend to focus their setlists primarily on the Fillmore-era original lineup, Ramblin Man will draw from the band's entire 40+ year history, highlighting the amazing compositions of longtime guitarist Dickey Betts, as well as notable contributions from later members like Chuck Leavell, Warren Haynes and Derek Trucks. Tryin to make a livin and doin the best they can. That's what you'll get every time with Ramblin Man.

Short bio

Based in Nashville, Ramblin Man is an Allman Brothers Band tribute built around twin guitars, dueling drums, soulful vocals, keyboards, and bass. The band draws from the ABB's complete 40+ year history, including the Fillmore era, Dickey Betts, and later contributions from Chuck Leavell, Warren Haynes, and Derek Trucks.

Full press bio

Ramblin Man is a Nashville-based tribute to the Allman Brothers Band, featuring twin guitar harmonies, dueling drums, soulful vocals, keyboards, and bass. Built by lifelong musicians who live and breathe the music, the band draws from the ABB's complete 40+ year history—not only the Fillmore-era lineup, but also compositions by Dickey Betts and contributions from later members Chuck Leavell, Warren Haynes, and Derek Trucks. The result is a set that reflects the band's full musical legacy.

Tagline

A full-history Allman Brothers tribute with twin guitars, dueling drums, and soulful vocals

Photos

Performance videos

- Promo Reel
  https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=GD6X2CMeChw

Contact and booking

Booking details and inquiries

View the latest press kit:
https://mztributebands.com/epk/ramblin-man