The Kings of Queen

A Tribute to Queen

About

THE REINCARNATED
The Kings of Queen are the hottest Queen tribute in the country, if not the world. Given that he's been dubbed as the reincarnated Freddie Mercury, frontman Emo Alaeddin is quite the spectacle.

Although there may be others, no other Queen tribute comes close to The Kings of Queen.

Equally important to sound like Queen, the frontman Emo Alaeddin has a striking resemblance to Freddie Mercury.
JUST LIKE THE RECORD
Despite the numerous voices on Queen records, The Kings of Queen possess the ability to bring the 4-part harmonies live to the stage. Consequently, this transforms to the live performance into a showcase matching the recorded treasures.

THE MAN UP FRONT
In addition, Alaeddin's vocal tone and range makes the live shows just like the real thing. Equally important to his vocals and looks are the costumes, which Alaeddin is known to change up to four times in one performance. After all, when it comes to stepping into the shoes of the greatest rockstar ever to walk the earth, covering every base is of the utmost importance. Moreover, a live experience of The Kings of Queen is the reason they have sold out venues and festivals time and time again since their formation in 2021.

Based in Orange County, CA,
The Kings of Queen perform all of their vocal and instrumental parts live without any need for overdubs or vocal tracks.
With all of this in mind, don't miss out on an opportunity to relive the magic of Freddie Mercury and Queen.
The band's vocal and instrumental talent is undeniably world-class and frontman Alaeddin's look, vocal tone, range, and stage performance is eerily similar to that of the late Freddie Mercury.

Short bio

The Kings of Queen deliver Queen's four-part harmonies and vocal and instrumental parts live, without overdubs or vocal tracks. Frontman Emo Alaeddin brings a striking Freddie Mercury resemblance, vocal tone, range, and up to four costume changes per performance.
